Monday Memo – April 23, 2018

PRESENTATIONS

- Heather-Lyn Haley gave an invited presentation to clinical staff at Penn State Health Milton S. Hershey Medical Center on the topic of “Race, Power and Privilege in Clinical Settings” as part of their Extra-ordinary Care for Diverse Patients by Care Providers Series. The April 5 visit also included participation in the Penn State College of Medicine Learner Lunch Lecture Series, at which Dr. Haley gave a brief presentation and guided discussion with medical students on the same topic.

- Philip Bolduc was an invited panelist for the joint DPH / Mass Med Society symposium Wednesday March 28th, Bridging Syndemics: Infections and Substance Use Disorder: A case-based, interdisciplinary exploration of the nexus of substance use disorder, and prevention and management of infectious diseases, with the goal of identifying strategies and action steps to improve patient outcomes.

- Suzanne Cashman had two presentations at the Association for Prevention Teaching and Research’s recent annual meeting in Philadelphia. In one, entitled Effective Competency Development, she participated as a panel discussant. The other, entitled A Pilot Study of Role-Play in Improving Faculty Facilitation of Small Group Discussions on Race and Privilege in Medical School was a poster presentation whose first author was Supreetha Gubbala, MS III.

- Tina Runyan and Amber Hewitt delivered a day-long presentation to an audience of nearly 80 participants at Maine Health in Portland, Maine on April 11th. Drawing from personal experience and a recently published peer-reviewed publication (with co-author Stephanie Carter-Henry, MD), Drs. Runyan and Hewitt guided the interprofessional audience through common and complex ethical scenarios when delivering integrated care.

- Tina Runyan delivered a presentation to the Missouri Primary Care Association in Columbia, Missouri on April 4th. She spoke on National Healthcare Trends: Implications for Integrated Care to an audience involved with integrating FQHCs across the state. She additionally offered afternoon workshops on Resolving Complex Ethical Dilemmas in Integrated Care and one on Clinician Well-Being.

- Sonal Singh - Oral direct acting antivirals and the incidence or recurrence of hepatocellular carcinoma was presented at Health Care Systems Research Network, Minneapolis, April 11, 2018 and NIH Collaboratory Grand Rounds. March 2, 2018
• Ronald Adler presented Universal Promotion of Cancer Screening Drives Low-Value Care: Pink … or Think? on April 9, at the 6th Annual Lown Institute Conference in Washington, DC,

• Ronald Adler presented On April 10, at Primary Care Days: Understanding Overdiagnosis: Potential Harms of Cancer Screening

PUBLICATIONS

